Peter and Ben were best friends. One day, they went to the library. But when they were half-way there, they heard a high-pitched voice crying something out loud. When they got closer, it became clear that the strange sound seemed like a woman crying for help! Ben rushed to see what was happening. Not knowing what to do, Peter chased Ben until Ben stopped and then gasped, Peter did too. Guess what they saw? A mugging in progress! There was a mugger (who had tattoos on his wrist, a black shirt, some torn jeans and a handkerchief tied around his neck!) mugging a wealthy woman! (who had trillions dollars of clothing, with a diamond pearl necklace and a pink diamond handbag.) 'You'd better shut that filthy mouth of yours, lady. Give me those pearls, they are valuable, aren't they? Now GIVE IT!' threatened the mugger while he pointed his machete directly at the woman's chest, which made the woman petrified. She froze into place, sweating and breathing heavily. 'What should we do?' Peter asked Ben. When he turned around, Ben was gone.

It was like he vanished into the thin air! Peter was sure Ben went to call the police, but no, when Peter turned around, he saw a boy wearing a chest plate with a 'V' symbol on it, boots, leggings and a cape! He looked basically a superhero, but not just any superheroes. Superboy! (whom Peter instantly recognised the superhero as Ben!) Was Peter surprised? Not really. Why? It was because he was also secretly a superhero too, he was Speedyboy! So he donned his Speedyboy costume, and got ready for the battle.

'Stop right there, evil doer!' said Superboy and Speedyboy at the same time. But of course, the mugger didn't. Instead, he put his machete onto the woman's throat and said, 'If you move ONE step, I'll slit her...' Before he could finish his sentence, Speedyboy used his super speed to snatch his machete away, followed by Superboy doing a flying uppercut and a purple orb thrust on him, but it didn't end there. Superboy caught him mid-air and spun him around and around and around and let go! The combo ended by Speedyboy slamming the mugger onto the ground.

After they hung him onto a street lamp (giving him a wedgie) in front of the police department, they returned to the woman where they were immediately greeted by the woman hugging them, and said, 'Thank you! THANK YOU! You are my saviors! And for that, I'll award you with new suits.' It turns out that it was a test and the mugger was a robot and the woman was a super-suit designer! After they arranged the time to pick up their new suits, Superboy and Speedyboy changed back to their alter-ego, Ben and Peter. They promised each other that there would be no secrets between them, and they formed a league of superheroes, the International Legion of Superheroes!
