Roy and his classmates went to the school picnic yesterday. When they got off the bus, one of his classmates shouted, 'Yay! I've waited for this moment for a long time!' They were excited.

When the teacher said, 'Enjoy the day!', all the students ran away with happiness. The park turned into a noisy park. Some played hide-and-seek and some played badminton. Roy and his friends had a barbecue. They were as busy as the people in cities.

Suddenly, Roy and his friend saw a green tail behind a tree! They ran there and found a green baby crocodile. 'What can we do?' Roy whispered. 'It's a baby crocodile. It's sleeping,' his friend said. They were nervous. They thought, 'Will it attack us?' Maybe we can call the vet or tell our teacher.' Then they ran to tell their teacher.

Finally, their teacher came and said, 'Where is the crocodile?' They whispered because they did not want to wake it up. 'Over there, beside the stream.' Some other students wanted to see it so they followed them. Some were scared and they screamed but some wanted to touch it. Roy was shocked because he found out there's a wound on its body. So he asked his teacher to call the vet. Finally, the vet came and thanked Roy. 'Thank you for saving this crocodile!' he said. Roy decided to visit the pet hospital when the crocodile recovered.
