My Dream Job

When I grow up, I want to be a writer. I want to be a writer because I am interested in writing books. This job attracts me because I like writing stories.

If I become a writer, I'll need to be passionate so that I can write good books. If I don't have a passion in writing, I will write boring books and nobody wants to read my books. I also need to be creative so that I can have new ideas. I need to keep a notebook so that I can use some good phrases in my work. To write good books, I need good phrases in order to make my stories attractive.

I will work in a publishing company. The people there will publish my books. I will write interesting English books because I hope that my readers can learn English from my books. I may have a chance to share my books around the world. I may not have enough good ideas so I need to gather more ideas in my daily life. I may earn a lot of money!

In order to prepare myself for this job, I will gather interesting experience in my daily life so that I can have more ideas for my books. I will also work hard to learn different writing skills in order to write well.

I think this job is suitable for me because I am creative and confident. I hope I can share a lot of interesting thoughts with my future readers.
